RECTOR'S NOTES

WORSHIP IN NOVEMBER

On Sunday 1st November 2026, which is All Saints' Day, there will be a choral celebration of Holy Communion at 10.30am. In our first reading, from the First Letter of John, we hear of the great love God has given us in making us his children, and of the hope that one day we shall see him as he is. In our second reading, from the Gospel according to Matthew, our Lord Jesus teaches the Beatitudes, declaring blessed those who are poor in spirit, merciful, pure in heart and peacemakers, and pointing towards the life of God's kingdom. During the service, the names of parishioners whose funerals have been held since 2023 will be read aloud.

On Sunday 8th November 2026, which is Remembrance Sunday, there will be a choral service of Morning Prayer at 10.30am, which will include an Act of Remembrance. In our first reading, from the Letter to the Romans, St Paul assures us that nothing can separate us from the love of God in Christ Jesus, even in the face of suffering, hardship and death. In our second reading, from the Gospel according to Matthew, our Lord Jesus teaches the Beatitudes, speaking of God's blessing upon those who mourn, those who hunger and thirst for righteousness, the merciful and the peacemakers. During the service, the names of the Fallen from St Peter's and St James in both World Wars will be read aloud. In the afternoon, at 3.30pm, there will be a service of Choral Evensong.

On Sunday 15th November 2026, which is the Second Sunday before Advent (also known as Proper 28), there will be a service of Family Matins at 10.30am. In our reading from the Gospel according to Matthew, our Lord Jesus teaches the parable of the talents, in which a master entrusts his possessions to his servants and, on his return, asks what they have done with what was placed in their care. The parable encourages us to think about how faithfully we use the gifts and opportunities God has given to us.

On Sunday 22nd November 2026, which is the Kingship of Christ, there will be a Service of the Word at 10.30am. In our first reading, from the Book of Ezekiel, God promises to seek out and care for his scattered people like a shepherd tending his flock, and to set over them a shepherd from the line of David. In our second reading, from the Gospel according to Matthew, our Lord Jesus describes the Son of Man coming in glory as king and judge, teaching that in caring for those who are hungry, thirsty, strangers, vulnerable or in need, we are caring for Christ himself.

On Sunday 29th November 2026, which is Advent Sunday, there will be an Advent Carol Service at 10.30am. As we begin a new Church year and enter the season of Advent, we will prepare once again for the coming of Christ through the familiar words and music of the season, looking back to his birth at Bethlehem and forward in hope to his coming again in glory.

Throughout the month, we have mid-week services on Wednesdays at 10.30am. On 4th November, anointing with oil will be offered to those who wish to receive it. On 25th November, it will be the traditional language (Form One) service.

PAROCHIAL ACTIVITIES

Our BIBLE FELLOWSHIP meets on Thursdays 12th and 26th November in the Minor Hall. Doors open at 7.15pm, and we begin properly at 7.30pm. We're continuing our study of Luke's Gospel.

Our BEREAVEMENT GROUP meets on Wednesday 11th November at midday in the church. Our theme this month is "Gratitude and Grief". Together we will reflect on the people we miss, the love and memories we shared, the things for which we can still be thankful, and the ways those we have lost continue to shape our lives.

Our PRAYER GROUP meets on Wednesday 18th November at midday in the church. You will be very welcome to join us, praying either aloud or silently. If you cannot attend, but would like us to remember you or a loved one in prayer, please use the Prayer Request Box at the back of the church, or use the online form on our parish website.

Our BIBLE STUDY GROUP meets on Wednesday 25th November at 11.45am in the Minor Hall. We'll be learning about the Book of Genesis.

HARVEST THANKSGIVING

Thank you to everyone who brought flowers, fruit, and vegetables with which to decorate the church for Harvest. And thank you to Sandra Davison and her volunteers who made the church look so beautiful!

We are also very grateful to all of you who brought various items to donate to the Welcome Organisation (for the homeless) and the North Belfast Foodbank. These donations are always much appreciated by their recipients.

RURAL DEANERY

In addition to being the Rector of St Peter & St James, I am also the Rural Dean of North Belfast. At its most rudimentary level, this means that I have oversight of parishes in north Belfast and Newtownabbey whenever they are without a minister of their own.

Since taking on the role in 2018, I have chaired the Select Vestries of ten of the twelve parishes in the area, such has been the turnover of clergy through retirement or moving on. At present, I chair three Select Vestries: St Peter & St James, St Paul & St Barnabas, and St Katharine. The only two parishes I have not been involved with are Mossley and Jordanstown, and that latter parish will (have) become vacant on 1st November!

The Rector of Jordanstown, the Rev'd Canon Nigel Baylor, is retiring, but thankfully he will remain living in the area. Hopefully this means that you might see him occasionally throughout the year if I'm on holiday.

Following his retirement, the parish of Jordanstown becomes "vacant" and retired clergy and diocesan readers will be asked to lead services on Sundays, and conduct funerals as necessary. My role will be to chair the Select Vestry, to coordinate pastoral care, and to help the parish tick over until a new rector is appointed. That might happen within several months, or it could take longer. Such things are never easy to guess, these days.

Rev'd Nigel Baylor served as Rural Dean in the first decade of this millennium, so some of you who have served on our Select Vestry should know him. Please remember him and his wife, Janet, in your prayers. And pray also for the people of Jordanstown, that they would not be long without a rector.

RULES BEFORE GRACE?

Have any of you been to a public library lately? Let's imagine that you decide that you fancy reading a book. So you set off to the library. It could be the one at the Grove, or on Salisbury Avenue, or anywhere you like. When you get there, you discover that the lights are on, and there are people moving around inside, but the door is locked. So you knock the door. The librarian, who can see you through the window, looks annoyed at the sound of knocking, but makes no effort to come over to let you in. You ring the doorbell, and again the librarian glares at you angrily, but doesn't let you in. Eventually, just as you turn to walk away, the door opens. The librarian gestures for you to come in and, by way of explanation, whispers, "Nobody is allowed into the library if they make a noise." Does that rule make any sense? Of course not. Whereas it's perfectly understandable to say that you need to be quiet when you're inside a library, it seems ridiculous to demand that anyone making a noise outside the library won't be allowed in. But think about that for a moment, because it is relevant to the story of Moses receiving the Ten Commandments.

If you read the Book of Exodus, you'll quickly discover that there were many more than ten rules given to the Israelites. And because we often associate the Commandments with the words "Thou shalt not …", it's easy to form the impression that these laws are intended to be restrictive, as if God simply wants to limit the freedom of the Israelites.

But it's better to focus on the intention behind those laws and understand that God was giving his people a framework for how to live together in harmony, both with God and with each other. Imagine what our society would be like if everyone told the truth; if everyone valued the sanctity of life; if everyone respected each other's property; if everyone was happy with what they had, rather than wanting what other people had. That's the kind of society envisaged by the Ten Commandments. God gave the Israelites rules to live by which would enable them to live as his people.

But here's the thing that many people overlook or misunderstand. The Commandments were not given to the Israelites on the basis that if they obeyed them, then God would make them his people. That would be like the librarian demanding that you follow the rules of the library before you've even set foot in the place. Rather, the Commandments were given to the Israelites because God had already chosen them as his people. God was not saying: "If you do what I want, then you can be my people." He was saying: "I have made you my people, so now live as my people."

The proof is there in the opening words: "I am the LORD your God, who brought you out of the land of Egypt, out of the house of slavery." In other words, God saved the Israelites, and then gave them the law. He didn't give them the law and say, "I'll save you if you obey."

What we are seeing here is one of the great biblical examples of salvation by grace. We talk a lot about that in Christianity: that we are saved not because of anything we do, but because of what Jesus has done. But grace is also at the heart of the Old Testament. The Israelites were saved not because of anything they had done, but because of what God had done. And once God had saved them, he offered them, through the Commandments, a glimpse of a better world. If they lived according to those Commandments, they themselves could offer the rest of the world a glimpse of what it meant to be God's people.

For us as Christians, there is a profound theological truth here, expressed in very simple terms. The forgiveness of our sins, no matter how trivial or how terrible; the chance to put the past behind us and start again; the invitation, encouragement and empowerment to become better people: these are all a free gift from God.

God doesn't stop us at the door and say, "I want you to do X, Y and Z before I let you in." He simply says: "The door is always open. Come and join me."

PAUSE FOR THOUGHT AND PRAYER

by Rosemary Johnston

‘O come, O come, Emmanuel’

We are now in the dark days before Christmas, but it is not all gloom and doom. This month we celebrate All Saints’ Day and we remember loved ones who died in the last two years; and we also remember, and give thanks for those who sacrificed their lives in the two World Wars. Then we look forward to the Advent service when we anticipate the birth of Jesus.

John the Baptist called us to prepare the way for the coming of the Saviour, long predicted by the Old Testament prophets such as Isaiah and Micah. John warned the people to “turn away from your sins and be baptized, and God will forgive your sins.” He also said “Make straight the way of the Lord.” God was sending his own Son to save his rebellious people and John came to tell them what to do to be ready for the Saviour’s coming.

Many listened and did repent but how many really changed their ways? As we read farther through the Gospels we also see how many rejected Jesus and called for his death. Yes, the Israelites were indeed a disobedient and rebellious people and God, who loved them all in spite of their rebellious nature, knew the only way to save them was to send his own Son.

With the approach of Advent we too can prepare to celebrate "the coming of the Lord" and our own salvation, for we also are a disobedient and rebellious people and in great need of God's grace.

As we look around the world today we could despair when we see such hatred and violence and also catastrophic weather events, which affect many people in poor countries who find it hard to protect themselves. God, however, does not give up on his wayward children and he is there waiting for us to return to him if we have gone astray, always ready to forgive and to shower us with his love.

And, a bit like the now famous sycamore tree at Hadrian's Wall, Northumberland, with new shoots coming from the base, so too new shoots are appearing in the church. Many people have come to realise that the life they are living is empty. Perhaps something has happened in their lives which has made them turn away from the church; or they never knew about Jesus; or they had an unhappy childhood; or they have come to realise that "having it all" does not satisfy them.

We hear of more people seeking after a better way of life and finding that through following Jesus of Nazareth. Let us pray for them in their seeking, that they find those teachers who stick to God's truth and do not try to teach a different doctrine. So, while chaos may be all around us God is always near us and always will be.

Heavenly Father: As we look around the beautiful world you gave us, help us to turn back to you, to seek your forgiveness and to seek your help and guidance on how to put things right, and with you "in charge" we know that "All shall be well, and all manner of things shall be well." Amen.

Mother Julian, 14th-century English mystic and anchoress.

PLACEMENT UPDATE

by Neville Cobbe

As I write, it has now been a little over a month since my placement at Saint Peter's formally began. During that time, I have been involved in visiting a few of you at home, either accompanied by your Rector or on my own following his suggestions. I have also read from the Scriptures, led prayers of intercession and a service of evensong, as well as preaching on one occasion to date. I am due to preach twice at Saint Peter's in November but I only preached at the Theological Institute in Dublin in October. I have also attended a couple of inter-church ecumenical meetings and assisted with the new Homework Club for children in P3 to P7, both helping with homework and supervising games in the hall.

It is hard to pick one thing that I have most enjoyed during the last month or so. I was impressed from the outset with the quality of singing by the choir and their contributions to worship, which reminded me of my first placement in Saint Anne's Cathedral. The fellowship after Sunday morning services over lunch in the Lansdowne has always been lovely. The smiles and laughter of kids evidently enjoying both each other's company and the activities at the Homework Club has been uplifting. The affirmation of many self-effacing but sincerely prayerful parishioners has been heartwarming. The evident engagement of all concerned during Bible studies has been encouraging to witness. And as someone who loves both dogs and cats, I have especially cherished meeting both Max Lacey and Tootsie Hanna.

One thing I have found interesting is the unexpected connections between people, often discovering mutual friends or connections with extended family members. One parishioner (whom I will not name here out of respect) jokingly commented to me that she would need to be careful as I seemed to already know all her friends. The greatest challenge has probably been negotiating a dissertation topic with academic staff at the Theological Institute that is considered more suited to the confines of the current course rather than arguably another doctoral thesis, whilst also flitting not only between different parts of the city during the week but also repeatedly migrating between Belfast and Dublin for various meetings. I am therefore grateful to both Ashlee McCune and the Rector for their part in finding accommodation for me in the parish, which is gradually feeling more like a new home.
