SPECIAL COLLECTION

I have never liked raising the issue of money. There's something very materialistic and worldly about it, which sits at odds in my mind with the spiritual purposes of the Christian Church. And yet – as we read in the Gospels - even Jesus needed the services of an Honorary Treasurer during his earthly mission. That it was Judas Iscariot makes it barely more palatable!

We are very fortunate to have a wonderful Honorary Treasurer, Ashlee McCune, and if you read her report in the Annual Accounts for 2023, you will see that we had a shortfall of just over  $\pounds$ 7,000. We can account for most of that amount from emergency work carried out at St James' last year, but nevertheless we do have an ongoing trend of our expenditure exceeding our income. As an active parish, our average yearly expenditure over the last five year period is £133,466, and the costs of ministry and maintenance will inevitably only ever go upwards. As our beautiful building ages, we will need to replace seating, heating, and lighting, and ensure that our stonework is kept in good condition.

On behalf of the Select Vestry, could I therefore ask you to do two things in order to ensure the future viability of St Peter's. The first is to review how much you give on a regular basis, whether by Standing Order or using FWO envelopes. If you could increase that regular giving even by a few pounds, then that will be an immense help.

Secondly, would you please make an additional donation to parish funds through our Summer Appeal special collection. Envelopes are included with the hard copies of these Parish Notes, which should be returned to St Peter's and placed in the collection box. If you would prefer to write a cheque, please make it payable to "St Peter & St James, Belfast", noting Special Collection on the back, and bringing or posting it to the church. For those who prefer online donations, you can either scan the QR code below, or use the corresponding web address.

Thank you so much for giving joyfully and generously to support the ongoing mission of the Church in our parish.

CONFIRMATION SERVICE

The Bishop will be with us at 11am on Sunday 16th June for our first Confirmation Service in six years. From our parish, those to be confirmed include six teenagers and two adults. There may be one or two from St Paul's as well. It is not often that the Bishop is in St Peter's, so it is particularly important that we are present to hear what he has to say, and to join in the celebration of those being confirmed.

Please note that there will not be a 10am service on Sunday 16th June.

TEACHING SERIES

Our Discipleship Group meets on Thursday 6th June at 7.30pm in the Minor Hall, when we will be learning about God the Holy Spirit.

Our Bible Fellowship meets on Thursdays 13th and 27th June, with the latter date being our end-of-term party before the summer break. We begin at 7.30pm in the Minor Hall and you will be very welcome to join us as we continue to study St Paul's Letter to the Ephesians. We conclude at 9pm.

Our monthly Mid-Week Bible Study meets on 11.30am on Wednesday 26th June, finishing at around 12.30pm.

CHRISTIAN AID

Thank you to those who took part in this year's Christian Aid fundraising walk. Led by Jill Bradley, the walkers this year included Dora Hanna, Thelma Cross, Judith Cowan, Jim Wilson, Margaret McKenna Black, and Annette Beattie. They walked each morning from Monday 13th until Thursday 16th May, covering twenty miles. At the time of writing, the amount raised is £950. Wouldn't it be wonderful to raise over £1000? It is not too late to donate, and if you would like to do so, please use one of the Christian Aid envelopes that are available in St Peter's, or write a cheque to "St Peter & St James, Belfast" noting "Christian Aid" on the back of it and bringing/posting it to church, or make an online donation by scanning the QR code or going to the web address below. You can make an online donation using PayPal, Google Pay, or Credit/Debit card. Thank you!

THE HOLY SPIRIT REVEALS THE TRUTH ABOUT GOD

Let me ask you this: If you were looking for love, and you had to write about yourself in a personal ad, what would you say about yourself? What would you say in order to present yourself in the best possible light? Would you be bluntly honest, or would you say only positive things about yourself? Would you perhaps even exaggerate a little? Then ponder whether someone, having read what you have said about yourself, would agree with your assessment of yourself once they had met you? Or would they discover quite quickly you're not as attractive as you think, and your "good sense of humour", isn't really that good at all? To use the language of domestic abuse, there are many women who discover that – after a whirlwind romance with someone they believe to be a charming, considerate gentleman – once they are married or living together, reveals himself to be a perpetrator – a narcissistic, controlling, abusive, and perhaps even violent person. I suppose the point I'm making in this regard is that sometimes people can initially present themselves one way, but when you really get to know them, when you have spent time with them, you can see the truth of who they are.

Now, this is quite an unusual way for me to get around to talking about the Holy Spirit. But bear with me for a moment and I'll explain.

If you read the Bible, you might come to some interesting conclusions about how to treat other people. One example that springs to mind is this little verse from Paul's Second Letter to the Corinthians 6:17: "Come out from among them, and be separate, says the Lord. Do not touch what is unclean." Verses of the Bible like that are what underpin most of the splits within the Christian Church over the last two thousand years. When Christians disagree over the finer points of theology, or about how to worship, then inevitably both sides of the disagreement see the other side as having a lesser faith, a wrong belief – perhaps even to the point that each would see the other as "unchristian". Therefore, the best thing to do, they might think, in accordance with the Scriptures, is "Come out from among them and be separate." As a result, the Christian Church splits into the 'right' and the 'wrong', and God must be happy with their decision.

Sometimes we can even believe things about God that are difficult to justify from the Bible, or at least from the New Testament. Perhaps related to the concept of "being separate from those who are unclean", there is within many congregations the notion that if someone offends you, then the best response to is treat them with contempt, and bad mouth them to everyone who will listen. That is, unfortunately, a standard human response. And it is made much worse when we believe that we are justified in doing so, because God is on our side, not theirs. They are not real Christians, we are. God loves us, not them. We are allowed to be hateful and angry and bitter because even God himself must be righteously angry.

Now, let me bring us back to what I was saying a moment ago about perception versus reality. If you think, whether based on Scripture or on your own imagination, that God is angry and judgemental, or that he favours certain people over others, or that he allows (perhaps even commands) us to be "holier than thou" with the people who fall short of the standards that we think God has ... then the chances are that we will behave accordingly. We will consider it permissible to be angry, permissible to be selfrighteous, permissible to be holier than thou, permissible to keep people out – because ... sure, isn't that what God is like?

But imagine, then, one day – having believed that God is a cold, distant, and judgemental being, that you then meet him in person and you get to see face to face what he is really like. You spend time with him, listening to him, observing him and you come to the conclusion, that despite your preconceived notions, and despite what you (think you) have read about God, that actually, he is really, truly, lovely. Think about someone that you have met who is wise and gentle, patient and humble, kind and concerned, and multiply that by infinity.

Imagine sitting with God, listening to him, and realising that he hates nobody, and he doesn't want us to hate anybody. And even though he's concerned that we think badly of other people, he's patient with us as we try to justify our grudges, and then he gives you a big tight hug and says "let it go". Let it go and think something nice about those people you claim not to like, maybe even do something nice for them. Instead of avoiding them, treat them like they are your favourite people in the whole world. Do that, and see what happens.

That quiet, unassuming voice in our hearts, that tells us to love those who hurt us, that tells us to help those in need – that is the Holy Spirit revealing God's true self to us. And you can know your Bible inside out and upside down, but until we hear the Holy Spirit - gentle, kind, patient, and joyful – we don't really know God. So my prayer for you is, that in a world which tries to drown out the voice of God, you would have ears to hear, and hearts open to receive him.

LUCY, THE CHURCH DOG

During my time at St Peter's, there have been six rectory pets – two dogs and four cats. Most of them will be unknown to parishioners, but Lucy, the black Labrador, encountered many of you when she accompanied me on those occasions when I was running errands to the church or halls. She had the annoying habit of scratching at knees for attention, but she had a gentle soul, and was always eager to make new friends with whoever was around – especially if they had food!

Heartbreakingly for my family, Lucy died at home at about 5am on Sunday 19th May after becoming unwell on Saturday evening, aged ten years and eight months. With hindsight, maybe there were clues of her deteriorating health in recent weeks, but they were neither consistent nor obvious. She was with me at the church just a few days beforehand to visit Anne in the office and to greet the Christian Aid fundraising walkers (see photo), and again on early

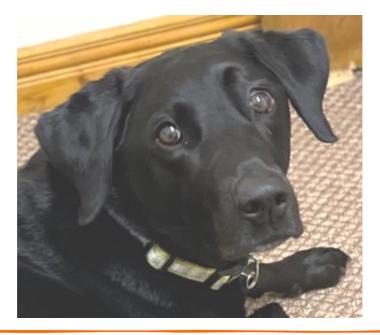

Saturday evening when I called down to cut the grass. She was a little slower than usual as she followed me about, but I chalked that up to the warm weather. By bedtime, she was deteriorating rapidly, and - having seen the signs of the final hours of previous pets - I made the decision to give her as much comfort and affection as I could, whilst forlornly hoping of course that maybe in the morning she might turn a corner.

As I lay beside her through the small hours, observing her fade away, one particular moment stood out: She stared up at something (which I could not see) on the ceiling and wagged her tail for a few seconds. It was the last time she ever would, and within half an hour the end had come. I've heard stories of people who have seen strange things in their final moments of life – including family members who have died long before them. Whether what Lucy saw was real or hallucinated, I wonder what it was that brought her that little moment of joy. Whatever it was, I'm glad she experienced it.

I adopted Lucy as a puppy when I had been at St Peter's for only a few months, so our parish is the only one she has ever known. Please forgive and indulge me for putting her on the front cover of this month's magazine. It shows her doing her favourite thing: being my little sidekick, running around, picking up the scent of the other dogs who had walked through the church grounds. Thank you to all of you who made Lucy feel a valued member of our Church community over these last ten years.

North Belfast Historical Society

The final night of the NBHS was a huge success with a lot of guests. The Rector gave a history of the Church of Ireland in north Belfast illustrated with wonderful photographs and paintings. He certainly put a lot of effort into his presentation which was much appreciated.

The Society resumes in September and notice of dates, topics and speakers will be given in the Parish Notes.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY

to those with birthdays in June: Julie Douglas, Hannah Delaney, Eddie McCamley and Laura Lacey.

May the Lord bless you and keep you.

If you would like to add your name to our birthday board, you'll find it on the notice board at the back of the church, alternatively, you can ask Anne, our Parish Administrator, to add it for you. No years mentioned!

PAUSE FOR THOUGHT AND PRAYER

by Rosemary Johnston

Some memories of growing up in St Peter's

My earliest memory of going to St Peter's was at about four years of age attending the Kindergarten which was held in the minor hall upstairs where we sat on little round chairs and were taught to pray, sing songs and listen to Bible stories. The songs were accompanied by a teacher playing a tiny, wheezy organ named 'Louisiana'. It still exists and you can see it against the wall next to the baptistry. I think we moved to the 'big' Sunday School at eight years old, which was held in the main hall. We went to church for the first part of the service and then to Sunday School in the hall for scripture lessons, including the Catechism-I couldn't recite it today! We also had the excitement of a Sunday School outing (my first)—all the way to Ballywalter where we had a great time. When we were older-about twelve-we went to Bible Class and then Confirmation Class. The last few classes were held in the old Victorian rectory, 697 Antrim Road, where our rector, Dr Breene, prepared us for confirmation, which was a big occasion, there being so many confirmants, both boys and girls, all going forward in pairs to kneel before the bishop. The next move was to join the Youth Guild, which was led by two wonderful people-Heather Swan (née Beamish) and Peter Cavan. They organised all sorts of events including moonlight hikes, maybe ending up at Sadie Lee's café in Glengormley. We also ran jumble sales which were a lot of work but great fun with many laughs. We also went to the theatre and saw some great, and hilarious, Victorian melodramas. One weekend we went to stay in Strangford, with Louisiana strapped in the back seat of (I think) Brian Wicklow's car, along with a record player and records including Ella Fitzgerald and Tom Lehrer. We attended the local C of I church. There was a Youth Guild Choir, conducted by one of our members, Douglas Lee, and we sang at the monthly 8 o'clock Holy Communion service in St Peter's as well as in the Chapel of the Resurrection on Sunday afternoons in the summer, after which we had tea in the rectory. We sang at the 7am service on Ascension Day, followed by breakfast in the hall. Christmas morning was special and was made more so as the mellow music of the Salvation Army Band could be heard nearby as we walked up Lansdowne Road before the 8 o'clock service. We went carol singing in the weeks before Christmas, which was well received by those we called with. Supper was usually provided by Mrs Lee, Douglas' mother. I was greatly honoured when the choir sang at our wedding in May 1961. There were also great evenings in the church hall, from beetle drives to barn dances, plays/ comedies, some put on by Sydney and Stanley Roberts. And who can forget the wonderful musical evenings, many brilliantly accompanied on the piano by Canon Harris? One of our renderings was the Highway Code, sung to a psalm chant (possibly no 111). Another memorable evening was when three of us sang 'Three little maids from school' from 'The Mikado'. Then there was the fashion show where we traipsed ever so elegantly down the 'catwalk'—several wooden trestle tables end to end. There were many parish suppers throughout the year, and oh! what spreads we were treated to.

These are just some memories of happy, innocent days—no drugs, no smartphones and no pressure from social media. Today we are blessed with a new generation of wonderful people in our congregation and we give God thanks for you all.

Heavenly Father, we, who were fortunate to grow up in a world devoid of many of today's darker influences, pray for the protection and guidance of young people who are bombarded by social media and the scourge of drugs.
We pray for all those working to help them, including their families, and also for those working to stop the supply of drugs and to curb the most worrying aspects of social media. We ask this through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

A trip to New Zealand by Jill Bradley

Recently I had a very pleasant trip to New Zealand visiting my friends Stella and Don Cullington who retired there some years ago. When living in Northern Ireland they attended Saint Peter's and Stella was a member of our choir.

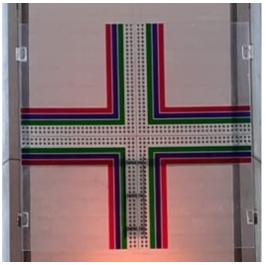

The first thing I noticed was the high proportion of Maori people in the general population - which of course is not surprising. Contrary to what I believed they are not not indigenous to New Zealand but travelled there from the Polynesian Islands mid-13th Century well before the 'white' man who arrived in 17th century. In modern day New Zealand, all public and official notices must be written in both Maori and English with the Maori first.

On my first Sunday we went to Dunedin Cathedral of Saint Paul where my friends belong. On that Sunday Don was playing the organ. The choir, who wear the same 'uniform' as ourselves in Saint Peter's, were few in number but very good.

I thought the suspended cross was very beautiful. The organ was unusually situated, well above floor level and requiring a flight of stairs to gain access. This stained glass window was presented to the cathedral by my friends and features Kiri Te Kanawa as Saint Cecilia, patron of music, and the two little angels have the faces of Stella and Don's grandchildren. It also depicts many

I was treated 'royally' by my friends and certainly saw a lot of the area during my stay. For example, we spent a week on the other side of the island in Arrowtown near the Southern Alps where they used to go skiing. To get there we drove right across the Otago valley seeing lots of different scenery. Vines are grown and wine produced, plus all sorts of fruit and vegetables. It is obviously very fertile ground with a favourable climate.

My impression of New Zealanders is that they are very welcoming and friendly. People say hello very readily - just like here - and very often start a conversation. You soon feel 'at home'. My friends, Stella and Don are now very much a part of this society.

scenes and animals typical of the area. Kiri Te Kanawa was present at the dedication.

The Otago peninsula, which is where Dunedin is situated, is one of the few places where the endangered yellow-eyed penguins - known as the hoi hoi to the Maoris - breed. Unfortunately I wasn't there during the breeding season but we visited the centre dedicated to them and learned a lot about them. In the same area there is an albatross centre and we think we saw a few of them in flight.

Another visit was to see the Memorial to Captain Scott of the Antarctic who perished with his four companions on the return journey after reaching the South Pole.

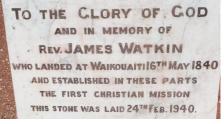

Another outing was to see the steepest street in the world!!

I thoroughly enjoyed my visit and would go back in the 'blink of an eye' if it weren't for the long, long journey!

I was very fortunate to have been in a position to make such a memorable trip and I thank God for the safe journey and wonderful experience.
